The South African financial markets comprise a range of activities, participants and instruments. Conceptually, they are concerned with two principal sets of activities: the transfer and trading of money or other financial claims, and the transfer and trading of risk. Understanding South African financial markets provides a framework for classifying and analysing these markets within the context of a modern capitalist system.

The effect of different markets on each other can, however, clearly be seen in the South African context. The money supply in South Africa is, inter alia, influenced by the gold price, because South Africa is a net exporter (seller) of gold. If the gold price should increase, the supply of money in the markets will increase due to more money flowing into the country.
